What is a focus wall?

A focus wall is a bulletin board designed to display the specific topics, skills, or themes currently being focused on in the classroom. Focus walls can be created for any subject but are especially well suited to language arts and math.

Benefits of a Focus Wall

- Serves as a visual aid for students
- Organizes focused content in one specific location in the classroom
- Teachers can use focus walls to introduce new concepts or review previous ones
- Evolves to reflect a deeper understanding of the ideas discussed as a theme or concept progresses
- Encourages the use and application of academic vocabulary
- Enables students to become independent learners by using the focus wall to answer questions they have when making connections with a new concept or skill
- Allows parents, administrators, and other classroom visitors to quickly see what skills and concepts students are currently learning

Language Arts

Words of the Week Use the Boho Birds Focus Wall Bulletin Board to post spelling words, current sight words, or vocabulary words on the Words of the Week chart.

Reading Chart Organize the elements of a story as you teach with the Boho Birds Focus Wall reading chart. Students can use the graphic organizer reproducible [page 3] for independent reading assignments or in reading centers.

Math

Math Chart Engage students with the Boho Birds Focus Wall math chart. Use the chart to introduce new lessons or overall math concepts and to provide examples of the skill. Use the chart to display and review key vocabulary terms. Students can use the graphic organizer reproducible [page 4] for independent math assignments or in math centers.

All Subjects

Blank Chart The Boho Birds Focus Wall blank chart provides a variety of uses in all subjects. Use a write-on/wipe-away marker to introduce the word or problem of the day or to post the steps of the scientific process when conducting science experiments. The chart can also be used to display the days left in the school year or important upcoming dates to focus on.

Bird on Branch Use the bird on the branch accent pieces as a display tool to showcase exemplary student work, vocabulary words and definitions, and anchor charts.

Subject Headers Use the subject headers to spotlight individual subject themes and concepts in reading, math, writing, science, and social studies.

Blank Subject Headers Add additional concepts and themes in music, art, technology, and other special subjects to your focus wall with the blank subject headers.
