Common nouns name people, places, things, and ideas.

- People: driver, musician, brother, pediatrician, firefighter
- Places: tunnel, courthouse, zoo, backyard, desert, bedroom
- Things: desk, helicopter, dictionary, microphone, pine tree
- Ideas: nervousness, environmentalism, justice, religion

Proper nouns name specific people, places, and things. Proper nouns are capitalized. For proper nouns that consist of more than one word, capitalize the first letter of each important word.

- People: Aunt Lucy, General Eisenhower, Juan, Ms. Braga
- Places: New Mexico, People’s Republic of China, Lake Michigan
- Things: Eiffel Tower, Baja Bill’s Burritos, Declaration of Independence
- Ideas: Hinduism, Marxism

Rewrite It
Rewrite each sentence below. Replace the common nouns shown in boldface with proper nouns.

1. I went to visit my aunt in the city last summer.

2. On a certain day of the week, we took a taxi to the museum, where the works of an artist were being exhibited.

3. We stopped at the street where the museum was located and paid our fare.

Lesson 1.2 Collective and Abstract Nouns

Collective nouns are used to describe groups of specific animals, people, or things.

A group of birds is a flock.
A group of ships is a fleet.
A group of judges is a panel.

A collective noun refers to a single group, so it acts as a singular noun. When a collective noun is plural (refers to more than one group), it acts as a plural noun.

Incorrect: The flock fly south for the winter.
Correct: The flock flies south for the winter.
Correct: The flocks fly south for the winter.

Abstract nouns describe ideas rather than people, places, or things that can be perceived with the five senses.

pleasure   grumpiness   inability   contentment

Complete It

Lesson 1.4  Appositives

An appositive is a noun or phrase that renames another noun in a sentence. The appositive offers more information about the noun.

Lucille, my great aunt in Texas, owns a small art gallery.
The phrase my great aunt in Texas is an appositive that renames Lucille.

When the appositive is nonessential, or not necessary to the sentence, it should have a comma before and after it. In the example above, you can remove the appositive, and the sentence still makes sense.

When the appositive is essential to the meaning of the sentence, do not set it off with commas. In the following sentence, removing the appositive Jane Austen would make the sentence much less clear.
The author Jane Austen wrote six novels.

Identify It
In each sentence below, underline the appositive. On the line, write E if it is essential and NE if it is nonessential.

1. China, one of the world’s most populated countries, is one of Earth’s oldest civilizations. ______

1. __________________________________________________________
2. __________________________________________________________
3. __________________________________________________________
4. __________________________________________________________
Lesson 1.5  Personal Pronouns

A pronoun is a word used in place of a noun. A subject pronoun can be used as the subject of a sentence. It can be singular (I, you, he, she, it) or plural (we, you, they).

They canceled the meeting because of bad weather.

An object pronoun is the object of a verb or a preposition. It can also be singular (me, you, him, her, it) or plural (us, you, them).

Please give him my thanks for the lovely bouquet.

A possessive pronoun shows possession. Singular possessive pronouns are my, your, his, her, and its, and plural possessive pronouns are our, your, and their.

Your teeth should be brushed at least twice a day.

Some singular and plural possessive pronouns can stand alone: mine, yours, his, hers, its, ours, theirs.

The pickup truck was ours. Wilma donated hers to the church bazaar.

Complete It

Circle the pronouns that correctly complete the sentences.

1. (Mine, My) friend Kyoko ordered butterfly eggs for (our, ours) science experiment.

2. (They, Theirs) soon arrived, safely shipped inside (their, hers) sealed container.

3. possessive pronoun that comes before a noun: ______________________________

4. possessive pronoun that stands alone: ______________________________
Lesson 1.6  Intensive and Reflexive Pronouns

Intensive and reflexive pronouns are pronouns that end in -self or -selves. The way the pronoun is used determines whether it is intensive or reflexive.

Intensive pronouns usually appear right after the subject of a sentence. They emphasize the subject.

You yourself will pull up the damaged sod and reseed the area.
Johan himself stacked the boxes and cleaned out the garage.

Reflexive pronouns appear elsewhere in the sentence and refer back to the subject.

I gave myself a pat on the back for completing the project.
The monkeys played among themselves while we watched.

Identify It

Identify whether the boldface word in each sentence is an intensive or reflexive pronoun. Write I on the line if it is intensive, and write R if it is reflexive. Then, underline the noun the pronoun refers to.
